Arthur Dolphin who followed in a great line of Yorkshire wicket-keepers such as Ned Stephenson, George Pinder, Joe Hunter and David Hunter, and with Arthur Wood who followed him, taken together, did splendid service for their county during nearly eighty years. Herbert Strudwick (Surrey) and E J “Tiger” Smith of Warwickshire were his contemporaries so it was perhaps not surprising that he only played one test match.

Towards the end of his playing career, he stood as an Umpire in Lahore in India (before partition) in a match in 1926 between the Army and the MCC. From 1930 to 1939, including seven Test Matches, he was a regular on the first-class panel.

He served with the Leeds Pals regiment in the First World War.
