STAFFORDSHIRE F. LINCOLNSHIRE.

The first of the two county cricket matches which annually form part of the entertainment of the siloke Wakes Woek was played on the County cround on Monday and Theseless and the county cround on Monday and Theseless are staffed to the county of the the catch saidy. Main foolishly ran himself out one ran later, and Neville was the next to go, for he got one of Barnes's most victous of Threaks. The ball withpied in several inches at a great pace, and shot the off stump out of the ground. Wells-Cole was treated to one that the study of the study of the study of destruction went on. Wells-Cole is presumably a son of the old Lincolnshire Captain, 'G. F., 'and is a promising all-round player, bowling quite a good left-hand ball. But the best of batemen are cold left-hand ball. But the best of batemen are of the best, a perfect length, of medium pace, and spun off the plitch at a speed that would have made had, play as futile as weak the best would have made place, play as futile as weak the power of play that particular sort, is perhaps at little difficult to answer. This wicket made two in one maden over for the third time during the innings. The end came immediately, for Heath best level with two of three inches of work for the winder of the best made to the cold little than the bowling deserved.

Staffordshire had a quarter of an hour's battling hedore tunch, and all ill toward he in the bowling of Day and Worman, but imme against the bowling of Day and Worman, but medium pace, right-hand bowlers. Day was not easy to play, for he succeeded in making the ball swip away with his arm occasionally, and also turned them a little from, the office of the player of the succeeded in making the ball swip away with his arm occasionally, and also turned them a little from, the office of threak, and seemed to vary his pace rather well. At the addournment, Staffordshire had sooned in the worm of the sweet low of the leg, and Bourne of three from him, but let off several loose balls wide on the leg, and Bourne with medium pace, right, Hollowed observing considerable caution. Day bowled a good deal on the leg, and Bourne well. At the addournment, Staffordshire had sooned into the part of the sweet loose balls wide on the leg, and succeeded in the sweet looks and the sweet l was greatly to his liking, for he dropped short and Nichols hit him to leg for four and six—the latter a fine hit—and when he pitched one up off-drove it to the rails. This was most cutertaining and meritorious cricket, but, unfortunately, Nichols, having hit 28 in 20 minutes, got under the ball in trying to null a short one, and was easily esught by mid on. The wicket had added 61 at the rate of three runs a minute by bright and attractive cricket. Tex was then taken with five wickets down for 22.

On resuning, J. S. Heath joined Taylor, who was caught in the slips after being at the wicket 55 minutes. His off-play was admirable, but on the ou-side he was rather weak and inclined to poke in a dangerous manner. Heath did not settle down readily, and at 244 he followed a bell that was going sway and was snapped at the wicket. Vost, having, as usual, been at sea with his first ball, which he snoked past the off stump to the eight-screen, played beautiful cricket, cutting and driving splendidly, though Wells-Cole, from the stand end, was bowling well and turning them awkwardly from the leg.

Bucknell had two narrow escapes from being caught, and snicked one dengerously near the leg stump. but he helped Vest to add 44 for the eighth wicket. After his departure, H.Dearing showed that he is bee good a but to be relegated to the 16th position, and he and Vost treated the spectators to a most cutertaining 25 minutes. The third hundred appeared at 6 5, and Dearing hit Wells-Ook square for four and out a full-pitch finely to the ralls. Then Vest reached his 50 in an hour and 10 minutes. The stumper was very sever on the left hand bowler, or driving him grandly for four, pulling a short one for two, litting him straight to the secreen, and hitting him square to the boundary. The pair had added 63, when Vost was caught in the slips for a shithin! and stylish innings of an hour and 20 minutes duration. Deres ran himself out in trying an impossible heg-byc, and the innings closed at 6 36, having lasted four hours and a quarter. The rate of run-getting worked out at rather more than 82 runs an hour—a satisfactor, pace. The visitors were completely overshadowed, and the first innings gave Stanfordshire a lead of 281 runs.

The wicket had dried considerably by eleven o'clock on Tuesday, when Lincolnshire a lead of 181 runs.

The wicket had dried considerably by eleven o'clock on Tuesday, when Lincolnshire commonced their second innings in a hopeless position. The Lincoln Captain this time took Ross in to open the innings, and Barnes and Deyes bowled. The start was disastrous; for only a dozen had been second when Ross played on, and one later hay failed to stop a very fast ball, almost a Norter, which laid the off stump flat on the ground. The visitors only professional had the mortification of gaining the dreaded party of the season of the change had the desired effect, for Worman playing forward, halled to keep the ball down, and gave an easy catch at mid-off at 33. Newfie followed, and Heath, being uncertain in his length, was hit for a couple of fours by the new comer, who also on drove Barnes for six. At 70

NORTHAMPTONSHIRE V. SUSSEX.

Played at Northampton on August 10, 11 and 12 and won by Northants by 138 runs. In the first innings of the home side both Seymour and Haywood batted an hour and three-quarters, and the last two wickets added 93. Some splendid bowling by Thompson put his side on the way to victory, and although Northants were put out the second time for 134 they won very comfortably. Score
